Event Overview:

Are you ready for your next State Radiologic Health Branch inspection regarding managing your radioactive wastes? Do you know how to minimize your radioactive waste disposal costs? How to set up a Decay-In-Place program and receive State approval for the program? Who are some of the top radioactive waste service providers in the waste disposal business?

Join us on April 1st for presentations on best practices for radioactive waste disposal, meet with some of the top waste service providers on the west coast and network solutions to your radioactive waste disposal operations and planning. Improve your compliance with the radioactive waste regulations, learn industry best practices, meet with some of the top waste service providers on the west coast (Philotechnics, Thomas Gray & Associates) and network with your fellow colleagues.

Our Workshop Leader: George Anastas

George Anastas has been providing radiation safety and occupational safety training and consultation in the Bay Area since 1990. He is a Certified Health Physicist, a Fellow of the Health Physics Society, a Professional Nuclear Engineer, a Diplomat of the American Academy of Environmental Engineers and a Fellow of the Australasian Radiation Protection Society. He is also a Past-President of the Health Physics Society. He has many years experience in radiation safety, industrial hygiene, occupational safety and nuclear safety with industry, engineering consulting organizations, California State University, the State of New York and San Diego Gas and Electric. He served as the EG&G Senior Executive Consultant to the National Institute of Occupational Health and Safety (NIOSH) in support of NIOSH efforts relating to atomic workers' compensation. He has published extensively and presented scientific treatises on all of his areas of expertise focusing particularly on risk assessment and risk amelioration.
